In 1964, the University of Portland overseas study program in Salzburg, Austria began. Joena was one of the program's first participants. The University selects some of their best students to study abroad. The students take classes in Fine Arts, German, History, Literature, Music, Philosophy, Political Science, Statistics, and Theology. The classes are designed to help them to appreciate the cultural experience of their two semesters in Austria and Europe and fit their core curriculum at the University of Portland. Class attendance is compulsory.
